Supplies:

Muslin 1/4 yard

Pencil or disappearing fabric pen.

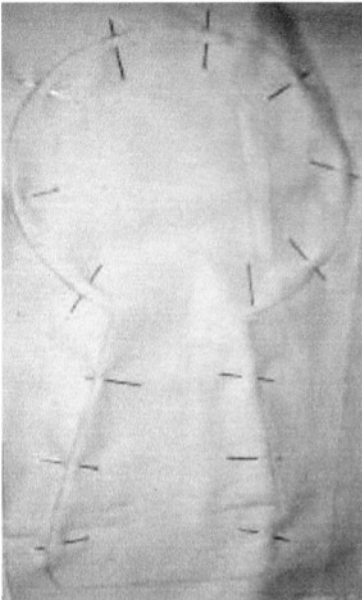

Straight pins

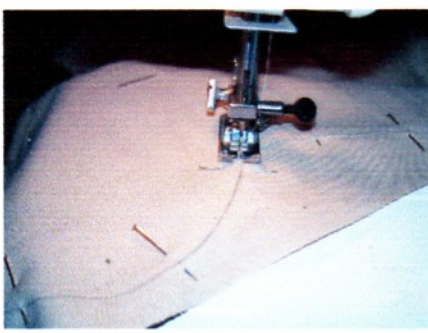

Stuffing

Basic sewing materials

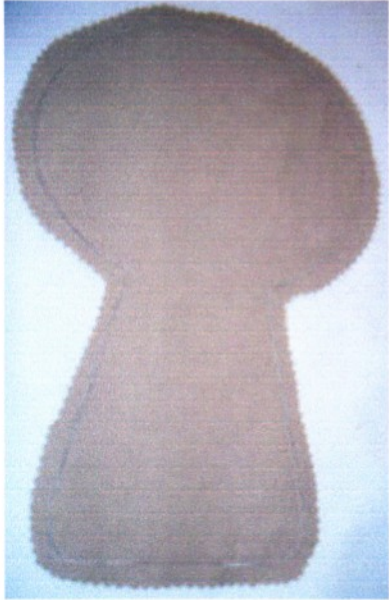

Optional: Pinking shears, hemostats, stuffing helpers.

1. Print out the doll patterns on cardstock. Place them on doubled muslin and trace around the pattern pieces either with a pencil or disappearing fabric pen; don't forget to trace around 2 arms and 2 legs. Pin.

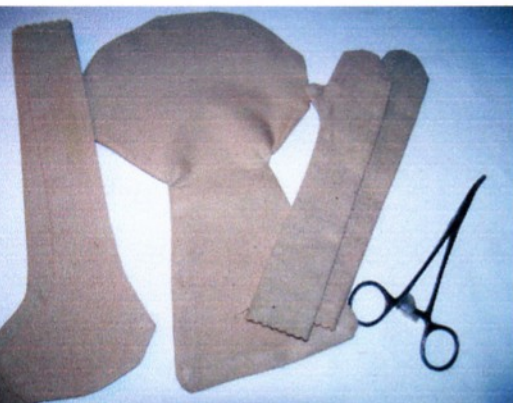

2. Machine stitch directly on the lines you just traced being sure to leave open where indicated on patterns.

3. Cut out your pattern pieces about 1/4 inch away from your sewn lines. I use pinking shears for this as it softens the edges and helps ease the pieces into a tight area such as the neck; remove all the bulk that can hamper a good, smooth curve.

4. Clip curves and turn. To assist with turning, many doll makers have purchased hemostats. These are actually medical tools, but can be easily purchased and are a great asset when trying to turn those small doll pieces such as arms and legs. Here is a picture of mine. You'll notice I have applied tape to one side of the handles; this is because my particular set of hemostats has a locking device on that side so to keep it from locking on me as

I'm trying to use it I wrapped tape around that side. There are actually many different types and sizes of hemostats. These can be purchased in the fishing department at Wal-Mart, at local medical supply stores, and on line. These are also a great asset for stuffing.
